TAFT ARRIVES IN CHICAGO SAFELY

PRESIDENT GREETED BY AN ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD AT THE STATION.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC GREETING

Gave Several Interesting Talks This Afternoon—Big Banquet Tonight.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, March 17.—The presence of President Taft made today's celebration of St. Patrick's Day the most notable observance ever held in Chicago. The visit of the President on this date was not a coincidence, for he came to the city expressly to speak at the St. Patrick's Day banquet of the Irish Fellowship Club at the Hotel La Salle tonight. Incidentally he made a number of other public appearances during the day and delivered several brief addresses.

The President reached the city shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and was met at the station by a committee from the Irish Fellowship Club and the 11th Regiment of the Illinois National Guard, known as the Irish Regiment. They escorted him through the flag-draped streets to the hotel, where a brief reception then made a round of the newspaper clubs, which kept him busy until noon when he returned to the hotel for luncheon.

The President was kept equally busy during the afternoon. The chief features of the programme were an address at the conservation conven-

LEGALITY OF LAWS IS NOT QUESTIONED

Manitowoc Case Decided by Judge in Favor of the Interurban Company—Appeal Will Cost Money.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Manitowoc, Wis., March 17.—Hull, that despite the fact that the city has no power to regulate fares outside of its limits, Judge Burnell in the circuit court at Oshkosh in a decision in the case of Manitowoc versus the Manitowoc and Northern Traction company in an injunction procedure to restrain the company from increasing its interurban fares to fifteen cents, sustained its injunction.

The court holds that the company by accepting a change in its franchise provided for a ten cent fare binds itself to a contract with the city. The court holds, however, that the state rate commission regulates the interurban fares and may raise or lower them notwithstanding the existence of a contract while on the face of it

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Tallor's Strike.
Journeymen tallors of the city have walked out because of the refusal of employers to grant the demands for an increase of wages in contracts for the year. Twenty-four men are affected by the walk-out which was voted unanimously by tallors at a meeting at which a compromise offered by the employers was rejected. Employers claim they have offered a 12 per cent advance and that the men ask 15, but the journeymen tallors say the demand is for 8 per cent only.

Experiments Made.
Experiments with the growing of cherries to determine to what extent the crop is suited to this section will be undertaken by the State Horticultural society at the state's trial orchard in this city. The orchard has been very successful, only 4 out of 375 trees failing to develop. Secretary Frederick Crandall of the state board is here to inspect the orchard and arrange for the new experiments.

Many Resignations.
An epidemic of resignations appears to have hit the local schools, the third resignation in a month having been filed yesterday when Prof. Santos, instructor in science at the North Side schools resigned to remove to Minnesota and follow farming. Miss Ella Colly resigned from the faculty of the Latin school and goes to Milwaukee, and Miss Ruth Eber of the West Side school resigned to wed soon. The city is arranging to adopt the city system after July 1 and will seek a city superintendent shortly.

Gives Decision.
Based upon the decision of the State Rate Board allowing the Water Works company $2,600 to its assets as cost of paving of streets paved by the city, the Water company, Gas company and Traction company, will be asked to pay a part of the assessment for paving to be undertaken this year, on the theory that they are liable because they use the streets for pipe system and tracks. A conference of city officials with officials of the company was called today to determine the matter which may go to the courts for final settlement.

LA CROSSE MAN HAS BUILT AN AEROPLANE

Clerk in Board of Public Works Office Will Try Out Own Invention Within A Month.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
La Crosse, Wis., March 17.—La Crosse is to have a competitor of the Wright brothers and Curtiss. Arthur Pederson, clerk in the office of the public works and son of a clothing merchant, is the young man, with aeronautical ambitions which he is willing to risk his life to fulfill. Pederson has been working on a new model aeroplane, which he has about completed, and he proposes within a month to make a trial flight from Granddunk bluff, 600 feet high. Pederson is confident that he can float down easily and gently. His new air vessel is a sailer and not equipped with engines.

Political Revenge.
Because they failed to vote as expected in the village election last week employees of the W. Smith Rubber company of La Crosse, the principal manufacturing institution in the town, claimed to have received notice that wages would be reduced 25 to 50 cents a day. Seven of the men who quit rather than accept the cut have engaged La Crosse attorneys who are now investigating to decide whether there is any cause for action against the company. Action, if started, will be backed up by the written notices claimed to have been received in the pay envelopes in which the men were plainly informed that the reduction was due to their opposition to the village ticket supported by their employers.

SAYS KICK BROKE BONES IN HIS FOOT

Plover, Wis. Man Pays $65 for Assault on Robert Baum Last September.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Grand Rapids, Wis., March 17.—A case of unusual interest was tried in one of the justice courts in this city yesterday, it being that of the State of Wisconsin against George Wallock of Plover, Wisconsin, charged with assault and battery. The complaining witness, Robert Baum, of Adams county, claimed that while he was in this city on the evening of the 14th of September last, after attending the stock fair, he was kicked in the leg just above the instep by Wallock, breaking two bones. At the time of the occurrence both men were in an intoxicated condition. The evidence for the state showed that the complaining witness came out of the back door of a saloon in this city and was going to his home, which was about two hundred feet from the saloon, but that in order to get there he found it necessary to go past the team, behind which team was tied a horse, owned by the defendant. When the plaintiff reached the other side of the defendant's wagon he was confronted by Wallock who kicked him with such force as to break two bones in his leg. When Baum was kicked he fell to the ground, and his groans attracted the attention of a policeman and some people in a nearby restaurant who carried him to a livery stable where a physician was called and the leg set. Upon the policeman's return to look for Wallock, nothing could be seen of his whereabouts. The plaintiff has been confined to his bed almost continually since that time, and is now able to be around only by the use of crutches. The defendant claimed that Baum was kicked by the horse tied to the back of the wagon, that he was in the saloon at the time of the occurrence, and that he was called out by his nephew who told him that a man was hurt near his team.

Wallock was found guilty and fined $25.00 and costs, amounting in all to $65.00.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM H. TAFT.

tion in Sweden at the Auditorium and a reception to the members of the Hamilton Club. Immediately after the banquet tonight Mr. Taft leaves the city for Rochester, N. Y., where he is to speak tomorrow night at a banquet of the Rochester chamber of commerce.

Woman Causes Trouble.
A woman named Jennie McD caused much excitement, soon after the President's arrival by her persistent attempts to get into the automobile containing the presidential party. She was finally subdued and arrested but no weapon of any kind was found on her person.

At the La Salle hotel the President chatted for a moment with the reporters. He said he had found time to write either his conservation speech or his "St. Patrick's" address, as he termed his scheduled banquet effort tonight, in advance.

Much Interested.
The President, addressing the newspaper club, expressed his great interest in the work of newspaper men. He spoke of the statements made in certain columns of papers which he thought created a sense of injustice. He believed, however, that the people are beginning to make up their minds regardless of the fact that statements are being made by certain newspapers or particular correspondents.

Was Very Busy.
The banquet will take place in Convention Hall, where covers will be laid for 1,000 guests. Mayor Edgerton and President Dietrich, of the chamber of commerce, will make short addresses of welcome. The only other speaker of the evening in addition to President Taft will be William C. Brown, president of the New York Central railroad.

At Traffic Club.
Talking to the Traffic club, the President said he was ready to condemn the railroads when they violate laws, and also ready to favor the laws that so regulate commerce as to make that all things equal. He declared that the people were ready to do justice when presented with the facts.

BASEBALL LEAGUE ON MODEST SCALE

With Only "Home Grown" Players in Lineup to Be Organized By the Local Fans.

Now once again, the old spring feet have been set to work. A movement to organize a "home grown" league consisting of teams from such cities as Beloit, Ft. Atkinson, Jefferson, Milton Junction, Evansville, and Footville has already been launched by a committee composed of Thomas Abbott, Ernest Meyer, Thomas McKeligue, and Charles Conrad. Under the stringent new rules adopted by the big league it will be impossible this season to hire any of the professional stars or near-stars at the end of the season or any time and this simple matter a whole lot. It permits the players in the proposed league to be "home grown" players, and is a guarantee that the rivalry between the towns will not develop into a bidding contest for professional players. The league, for instance, will be made up to a large extent of players who distinguished themselves in the city league last summer. Two and a half acres in the southwest corner of the fair grounds may be converted into a satisfactory baseball diamond and the grandstand moved westward if the co-operation of the owners and the consent of nearby property owners can be secured. The street car company management has signified its willingness to lay a spur to within eight rods of the western gate. If this plan is carried out the local club will lay out a first class diamond and sublet it to other teams when there are no Janesville games on its schedule.

PLEASANT EVENING AS Y. M. C. A. GUESTS

Open House Yesterday Was Enjoyed By Large Number of Guests.

One of the most pleasing entertainments ever given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. was held last evening at the association building for the members keeping "open house" for the public. Between three and four hundred people were the guests of the association, a large number of those present being members of the gentler sex and a splendid program, varied in its character, was given, the crowd expressing its appreciation by hearty applause.

The opening numbers were musical selections, rendered by the Mandolin Club and the Y. M. C. A. quartet, composed of E. J. Van Pool, L. F. Fisher, Charles Collett and Frank Doane. These gentlemen also gave pleasing solos. An orchestra organized for the occasion by Mr. F. P. Lewis delighted those present with its music. Interspersed between the musical numbers and the halves of the basketball games were gymnastic exhibitions by members of the association showing the work done in the various classes. Prof. A. P. De Grace (Sterling Campbell) and a small boy gave an exhibition of some fancy balancing and tumbling and Sterling Campbell and Rollo Dolson performed some clever feats on the horizontal bars.

The features of the entertainment were the basketball games. In the first one, the basketballers of the Business Men's class triumphed over the Y. M. C. A. team by a score of 22 to 12. The basketballers of the Y. M. C. A. team were a little bit too speedy for them and were better at throwing baskets. The lineup: Basketball: Lovejoy, Dunwiddie, Wolcott, Hilde, and Knudson. Married Men: Rahr, Marross, Holt, Hilde, and Knudson. Field goals: Lovejoy, 3; Dunwiddie, 2; Wolcott, 2; Holt, 2; Knudson, 2; Rahr, 1; Knudson, 1. Free throws: Holt, 3; Rahr, 2; Knudson, 2.

The basketball playing was somewhat hindered by the cramped quarters, the crowd being packed in up to the very edge of the playing floor, which prevented free passing. The ball went frequently into the crowd which somewhat delayed the game.

The second game was the more exciting of the two contests. The intermediate team and Seniors, the intermediate team winning by a score of 24 to 30. The intermediate team was superior in many ways to the Seniors, but were frequently penalized for fouls and in that way. The teams lined up as follows:

Intermediates: Crissey, guard; Brown, center; Korst, forward; Blank, forward; Stewart and McCarthy, guards.

Seniors: Schuler, center; Helder, forward; Ryder, guard; Abraham, guard; Green, forward. Field goals: Brown, 4; Crissey, 2; Korst, 3; Blank, 2; Abraham, 2; Schuler, 1. Free throws: Abraham, 4; Schuler, 2; Ryder, 2; Helder, 1; Green, 1; Brown, 2.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER

By WALT MASON.
(Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)

There lived a maid—it's a long time since—who dreamed and dreamed of a coming prince; a prince who lived in a stately tower, with a diamond key and a bride.

And he would come on an evening fair, on his coal-black steed, and take her there. And the miller's son had a weary soul; he scorned his love and she scorned his roll, and told him bitterly to seek his head when he came imploring the maid to wed.

And the farmer had had a doleful heart; as he toiled afield bitter tears would start; for the miller's son had told the maid how she killed his life, and humbly begged her to be his wife. And so was the dream of the baker's clerk, and he spluttered tears as he did his work; and a dozen more of the village swains were full of sorrow and gnawing pain; for the maiden listened to all their vows, and only answered "Nix-narouse." O, the years passed on and the maid was old, and her hair was gray that had once been gold; and her nose was hooked, and her chin was long, and ever she murmured this doleful song: "The miller's son and the farmer had have wives and homes and their hearts are glad; the baker's clerk and the other boys are rich and honored and fat with joys; and I of them all may squirm and whine; I weeped my life on a pipe-dream prince!"

ROCK COUNTY BAR SENT CONTRIBUTION

Over One Hundred Dollars Given To Aid In Erection Of Monuments To Dead Chief Justices.

Janesville's contribution to the fund being raised to erect monuments over the graves of two former chief justices of this state, Luther S. Dixon and Edward G. Ryan, amounting to over $100, has been forwarded to Judge Grimm by Attorney O. E. Oestreich, who had charge of the subscriptions in this vicinity. That this amount will be exceeded is certain, for many have signified their intention of contributing and will forward their gifts to Judge Marshall of Madison who is taking charge of the money received from all parts of the state.

The project has met with the unqualified support of the Rock County bar, the members appreciating what the dead justices accomplished during their terms of office for the established law of the state. Both, however, much they did for the commonwealth, were in straitened circumstances when they died and up to the present time, their memorials have not been honored. The Ryan grave in a Milwaukee is unmarked while Judge Dixon's lot in the Madison graveyard is similarly neglected.

Should every county, in the state respond as liberally as has this county, a fund large enough to erect suitable monuments will be available to remedy years of neglect on the part of the state.

Tribe of Bold Thieves Helped Themselves at Thomas Frusher's Farm 11 Miles West of the City. Three men, riding in what resembled a livery rig, stopped at Thomas Frusher's farm 11 miles west of the city at half past ten o'clock yesterday morning and helped themselves to two seven months old collie pups. The owner was about 80 rods away at the time and couldn't reach the scene in time to prevent the bold theft. Last evening Chief Appleby made inquiries at the local stables but got no trace of the offenders. It was learned this morning, however, that some horse traders offered to sell a pair of dogs answering to the description to George Woolf in Beloit while the horse sale was in progress there, yesterday.

Summer, Prophet.

Here, under a bright sun, such as shone at Ansteritz or Buena Vista—amidst the peaceful harmonies of nature—on the Sabbath of peace—we behold bands of brothers, children of a common father, heirs to a common happiness, struggling together in the deadly fight with the madness of fallen spirits, seeking with murderous weapons the lives of brothers who have never injured them or their kindred.—Speech of Charles Sumner, 1849.

LEADERS IN THE MEMORABLE FIGHT FOR IRELAND HALF A CENTURY AGO.

On this anniversary of the birth of Ireland's great saint, it is eminently fitting that we should look back half a century to that great struggle for Irish independence. The struggle, backed by the Fenian society under the leadership of John O'Mahoney and James Stephens.

The Fenian society was organized in Paris in 1848 through the efforts of James Stephens. Its object was the overthrow of English authority in Ireland. The first step was an attempt to convert the people of Ireland into a solitary capable of resisting the British army.

At the same time the American society was formed by John O'Mahoney but this did not obtain a really good footing until the arrival of Stephens. Its principal object was to supply money and arms to the Irish branch. The growth of both branches was very rapid.

The Civil war gave the Fenians a great opportunity to obtain military training.

At the close of the war it was hoped among the Irish that the time was ripe to strike but after a careful investigation it was found that the organization was not sufficiently advanced for active military measures.

The British government suddenly arrested all the leaders, but Stephens escaped and fled to America, where he was joyfully received. Stephens' activity at last brought about his deposition and soon an armed invasion of Canada was on way. At last 500 men actually crossed the border and were successful in defeating the Canadian militia. They had to return, however, and the leaders were arrested by American authorities.

A daring attempt to seize the arms and ammunition stored in Clontarf castle was thwarted and the general uprising in Ireland which was to follow the seizure was suppressed at every point. Another attempt to raid Canada was suppressed by the United States government in 1871. This was the last effort of the Fenians. Their efforts had been wasted. This was due to the fact that they had no real leaders. Since then, by more peaceful means, much has been gained for Ireland. Never was the outlook brighter for Irish home rule. Through the efforts of John Redman and others, most of the farmers today own their own lands. This presents a better lot than formerly, and taken as a whole the conditions of Ireland are indeed bright.

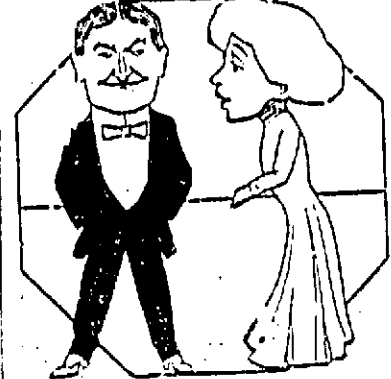

THE GLUTTON.

Daughter (in whisper)—I never felt so ashamed of my father. He boasted to the dinner that he had eaten a whole chicken, a two-inch steak and topped it off with a lobster and a Welsh rarebit.

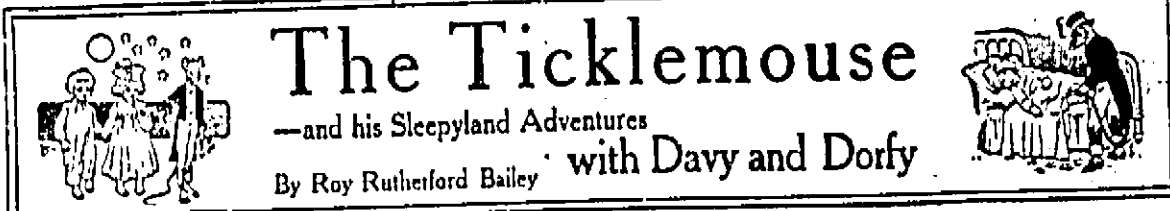

Mother—Gracious! And did the other diners make any comment?

Daughter—Yes, a drummer asked if he thought it was on the "Great Gorge route."

HER FIRST LESSON.

"Blanche is simply hopeless," exclaimed a lady who had been trying to teach a friend to play bridge. "Why?" asked her husband. "I began by asking her if she knew the value of cards, and she said, 'Why, certainly; about a shilling a pack.'"

The Ticklemouse
 —and his Sleepyland Adventures
 By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

"Going to St. Ives"

LAST night the twins slept each with one eye open, hoping that the Ticklemouse would come again as Davy had asked him to do.

They heard the nursery clock strike twelve, as good little twins should never do. As if to punish them for staying awake, Mr. Ticklemouse was very late.

It was almost two o'clock when Davy was awakened by a funny feeling in his foot. In the dim light of the nursery he saw the Ticklemouse gently drawing the tip of his long tail across Davy's bare toes. He seemed glad to see the little boy again. His beady eyes shone with a friendly light.

Davy bounced out of bed. "Oh, goodness! May I wake Dorfy, Mr. Ticklemouse?"

The mouse shook his head. "Don't you remember what I told you last night? If you wake her, Davy, she couldn't see any of the fun—she'd see right through it. To see things in Sleepyland, a child has to be awakened by a Ticklemouse, dearie."

He raised the coverlet from Dorfy's little bed and tickled her rosy foot with the tip of his tail. Davy laughed with delight to see how surprised Dorfy looked, after all her waiting. "Hurry, children!" said the mouse, and hustled them to the window, where something was fluttering in the cold light of the moon.

"Why, it's Davy's old kite, tied to the window!" whispered Dorfy. Davy said nothing—after last night's adventure, he did not intend to be surprised at anything.

Mr. Ticklemouse grasped the kite firmly by the tail, and motioned to the twins to do likewise. "Boo!" shivered the little girl, looking down at the snow-drifts. "It's so cold!" Just the same, she obeyed the Ticklemouse, who cut the string with a stroke of his sharp teeth—and they were off!

Over the snowbound village and fields they flew—and landed in the soft shadows of a warm, flower-scented summer night. The children looked with awe at a great, grim castle the mouse pointed out in the distance. It was high on the top of a rocky crag, like a bird's nest on a flagstaff. Like a giant, it looked down on the flower-strewn highway they were walking along, hand in hand with the silent mouse.

The mouse kept them walking very fast. "I'm late tonight," he said with a shake of his gray head.

He pointed solemnly to the castle. "That's the stronghold of the Enemy," he told the twins. "My king has sent me to spy out their numbers and strength. What's this—look out!"

He drew Davy and Dorfy back into the shadow of a great oak at a bend in the highway. A strange procession was coming toward them. The Ticklemouse sniffed the air nervously. "It's only some old women," he said, "but the Enemy are somewhere near! What's that on their backs?"

And now a strange thing happened. One of the seven fat old women stopped short in the moonlight and began fumbling with one of the sacks she was carrying. The fastening gave way and out popped a cat! A lot of nimble kittens, all dressed in red, followed her.

The Ticklemouse snarled softly in the darkness and Davy saw the gleam of his angry teeth. "Count 'em!" he whispered. "Seven kittens," said Davy in the mouse's ear.

"Yes—ask!" hissed the excited Ticklemouse. "And there's another with her children, and another, and another—

 by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a running ear or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Hence cases of deafness caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

A Wall Paper Suggestion

The New Crown papers will be used effectively this season wherever the design will permit. Our stock includes many handsome crown papers, from the moderately priced to those fine creations at 50c per roll.

Where many pictures are to be used, appropriate papers are those which have no pronounced figures in the pattern. For small low rooms, the striped papers are best as they will give added height. If the room is high the crown can be hung several feet from the ceiling and plain or lattice papers used above. Gray colors are best suited for rooms having East, South or West exposure. North rooms require a warmer tint.

We are glad to offer suggestions at all times to aid our patrons in selecting the correct papers and colors so that charming results may always be obtained.

We offer a stock of modern wall papers, the largest in Southern Wisconsin, at prices always moderate.

Telephone Talk

Once in a while we have complaints from telephone users that their calls are not answered as quickly as they would like, and often the complainant says he thinks the operator is busy visiting with somebody and will not answer. Telephone users are prone to think only of their own desires; it doesn't seem to occur to them that calls must be answered in the order they are received and that ALL of our 2000 subscribers CAN call at the same time. Of course they don't all call at the same time, but during the "busy" hours, which range from 8:30 a. m. to noon, an operator often handles 150 calls in an hour, an average of 2½ per minute. You will readily see that there is no time for visiting. Last Tuesday we made a count of the number of calls answered from 7:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. by our eleven operators and found the sum total was 9,400 calls, 1,117 being from country lines. Nor were there 11 operators on at all time. 7 hours during the busiest times 11 operators are on duty, 6 hours there are 7 operators and for one hour there were 6 operators on duty.

More than one-half of our calls are from people who are non-subscribers and really have no right to use our phones at all. If our subscribers would help us get rid of this vast army of dead-heads we could supply those who pay, with vastly better service. You can do this by persuading your dead-head neighbors to become subscribers themselves. The cost is ridiculously small and the benefits and convenience are great.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Perhaps there is no nationality in the world, who without a country of their own, without a flag of their own, have one day in the year set aside for their commemoration throughout the civilized world as have the Irish. March 17th, St. Patrick's Day, is celebrated the civilized world over, where ever an Irishman has roamed. The bits of green ribbon, the tiny sprigs of shamrock worn by the true sons of the soil, by the second and third generations, all testify to the love for the native land that has long been under the heel of the Saxon race.

St. Patrick, the patron saint of the Emerald Isle, typifies Ireland itself, and this one day of the year that the world at large commemorates his birthday, is really the birthday of the country itself. Today, in Chicago, a president of the United States will ride in the St. Patrick's Day parade and this evening he will attend a St. Patrick's Day banquet, be toasted and cheered and will deliver a speech to the Irish-Americans, who make up such an important portion of our population.

Ireland is the one civilized country in the world with a declining population. Death and emigration outbalance births and immigration.

Her population today comprises principally the aged, the infirm, the shiftless, the youthful and the mentally weak. The strong sons and daughters have gone to Australia, South Africa and Canada, or have come to the United States.

The money sent back home by these is keeping the spectre of want from Irish homes unnumbered. American dollars are contributing largely to the support of the church in Ireland, and supplying the means to keep up the fight for home rule. The Irish in America are the bankers of the Irishman at home, but neither principal nor interest is expected in return.

Ireland's struggle for home rule has been going on for a thousand years. That struggle is the most sublime example of courage, fortitude, suffering, and devotion to an ideal presented anywhere in the pages of history. Find what has the appearance of a parallel to its fortitude, and you have found somewhere yielding, compromise, Irishmen never have and never will be content with anything short of absolute independence, or submit unhesitatingly to a scheme of government providing anything short of it.

Such a fight must win. The land purchase law was a long step in securing justice to Ireland. It opened the way to the restoration of the land to the people on terms favorable to them. This recognition of the fundamental wrong in Ireland—land monopoly—promises early appreciation of other wrongs, and their correction. Never before in England's history has there been disposition as general to do justice to the Irish people. One of the demands of the liberal party, triumphant in the recent elections, was justice for Ireland.

The progress of reform and peace is being hastened by the increasing disposition of Irishmen to act in concert, not as divided factions presenting each a different proposal as an immediate possibility. The Irishman is pre-eminently an individualist, assertive, restless under restraint, and contemptuous of authority.

LABOR UNREST.

Newspapers the country through are sounding words of warning to the laboring element relative to the spirit of unrest that appears to pervade the atmosphere at the present time. One editorial writer points out that even if the Philadelphia strike is in the way of settlement, following the ridiculous failure of the so-called "general strike," the labor situation is more unsettled than it has been for a long time past. Some 25,000 firemen serving close on fifty roads west of Chicago, have delivered what amounts to an ultimatum in their demand for higher wages and other concessions. Something like 150,000 miles of road are affected, and if the eastern roads are not quite so directly threatened, they have troubles of their own.

Baltimore & Ohio has made a concession to part of its employees, but the other eastern roads are still up in the air. General managers say they do not look for strikes, except in remote cases; but every road in the country is more or less affected, to say nothing of the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific, with their extensions into the United States. Add to this that the United Mine Workers are particularly restless and active, and well disposed to make another bid for complete recognition of their national union. The outlook is peculiarly perplexing because, whether the corporation is supplying transportation or fuel, it cannot settle the question of wage increases off hand by advancing the price of its commodity.

It is suggested, both by the union leaders and by well-meaning outsiders, that the railroads have only to advance rates in order to meet the demands of the men. The railroads, unfortunately, cannot advance rates at will. If they charge more for the transportation they supply they do not make more money, because they bill business thereby. Railroad transportation in this country is undoubtedly cheap in comparison with the same service everywhere else, but freight rates, complying with the law of supply and demand, are just what the traffic will stand and no more. An advance in rates in one section of the country means the shutting down of mills there, with the transfer of production to somewhere else where rates are still reasonable.

This was made obvious during the year 1905, in spite of the depression the railroads, under political pressure of the most shortsighted character, maintained wages at their previous high level. Theoretically, they could have advanced rates; practically, they dared do nothing of the kind. What they did do was to lay off men. So far as the wage-earning capacity of the people is concerned, it is the same thing whether one hundred men have their wages reduced thirty per cent, or thirty per cent of the men are laid off. The reduction is ultimately felt in the gross wealth produced, so that the higher wage is a national loss.

The railroads are in no condition to advance rates. They may be compelled to advance wages, but if they are it will mean a corresponding increase in unemployment, followed, as it has always been followed in the past, by a cut in wages caused by the competition of the men themselves.

There is talk of the saloons' enemies holding a license or no license campaign in this city this spring. One is reminded of the way an Englishman spelled the word saloon; a less, a hay, and a hell, two hoes and a hen.

Those insurgents who are coming home to bark at Cannon and make their campaign issue on his probable defeat at the next congress should all have ears tied to their tails like the naughty dogs have.

If the would-be dictators of Wisconsin politics at Washington really meant to try and defeat the senior senator for re-election they never would have selected the former reputed state republican chairman to manage the affair.

The Milwaukee Journal will be delighted to make most favorable comment about its insurgent friends now that a few more have been added to the list of the anti-administration followers.

Is it possible that Senator Stephenson endorsed the appointment of Connor as manager of the Wisconsin campaign after the way Connor tried to beat him when he was running for the senate?

It is doubtful if a completely reformed house of lords would really be satisfied with their status in English politics.

Never before in its long history has the White Nile been so thoroughly photographed. Even the natives feel a bit bored by this time.

Joseph Cannon is still one of the big men of the country despite the fact that there are some republican members who oppose his rule.

It is strange to learn that even the opponents of Senator La Follette are equally opposed to W. D. Connor as the campaign manager.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

ONE GIRL'S FOLLY.

What shall it profit a girl if she buys a prince for a husband and loses her life's happiness?

Or—
If you pay a million dollars for a husband who is not worth 30 cents, how much do you lose?

Miss Anita Stewart of New York is facing these two problems in agreeing to marry Prince Miguel Braganza, the son of the pretender to the throne of Portugal.

Prince Miguel is no saint. He has a long record of escapades, is deeply in debt, has been ousted from his clubs and dishonorably discharged from the army.

To be the mate of this scapegrace and to bear the title of princessa Miss Stewart will settle on Miguel the sum of $1,000,000.

Or, to put it precisely, the girl's foolish mother will pay the money.

The mother inherited millions from the late eccentric "Silent" Smith.

And this is a brief history of the family into which the silly Miss Stewart will enter.

The Braganza family was founded by Don Miguel, who usurped the throne in 1828. He was appointed regent during the infancy of his niece, who was to be queen—that is to say, he stole the crown from a baby! Revolutionists backed by the powers ousted him. It was shown that he had no claim whatever, having been born three years after his mother, Queen Carlotta, had been separated from her husband, King John.

A pretty heritage indeed!

Since the time of the founder the family has loitered around Europe, exploiting its so-called claims and looking for rich girls to marry its sons.

And for this empty title and this pseudo prince an American mother will consign her daughter to the embraces of a notorious rake and give him $1,000,000 with which to ruin himself.

Could folly further go?

Why should any woman in this country of ours, where every woman may be a queen and have for consort a royal king of men—why should any woman American born and bred stoop from her high position to take up with titled debauchees or scoundrelous degenerates of ignoble aims simply for a title?

Not for happiness, certainly.

Even when an American girl marries a nobleman of the highest type she takes a tremendous risk of happiness. Their ways are not our ways.

But—
To throw oneself away on a titled rascal and give him $1,000,000 to boot!

This Car is a Profitable Investment-- Not An Expensive Luxury

There is no longer any need of figuring the purchase of a motor car as an expense. The day when people were willing to pay a high price for a machine, simply for the satisfaction of owning one, has gone by.

You can figure the purchase of a McIntyre on the same basis that you would figure investing in any other machine for your farm—on the basis of having it save time and expense.

The tendency in automobile prices is a altogether downward. Many manufacturers have reduced their prices who really cannot afford to. For this reason:

They have spent so much money in experimenting and perfecting the mechanical details of their cars, erecting plants, installing machinery, etc., that what they call their "overhead expense" is so high that they must necessarily sell at a high price to make money.

When they reduce their price the value has to come out of the car. The McIntyre company has been building wagons and buggies since 1860. Its product is known the world over for quality. When motor vehicles were finally perfected, the McIntyre company who, during the experimental stage of the game, had been quietly studying the situation and profiting by the mistakes of others—acquired in one purchase at the lowest possible cost, the small amount of additional machinery which, with the equipment already had, enabled them to turn out a first class car.

We have told you all this because we don't want you to confuse the McIntyre with ordinary low priced cars.

The 14 H. P. McIntyre Motor Buggy

is the most economical, satisfactory motor buggy made. The cost of gasoline to operate it is less than the cost of keeping even one horse. It's much faster, safer, surer, always ready and never tired. The McIntyre line includes a car for every purpose. Licensed under the Selden patent.

The Value of Good Beer

In commenting on a report made public by a Special Government Commission, "The Hospital," London, in an editorial, says:

"When a man drinks good beer, he drinks and eats at the same time just as when he eats a bowl of soup. We hope the number of beer drinkers will increase considerably, as the result of the research of our Commission and we hold the view that it would be infinitely better for the well being of the people as a whole, if they would select beer as their habitual drink. If the worth of food is measured by its calorimetric value, that a glass of good beer is approximately as nourishing as a glass of milk, or a quart of good beer is equivalent to a quarter of a pound of beef and it is often far more efficacious in the treatment of insomnia than drugs, due to the hypnotic principle contained in the hops."

THE PERFECTION of Golden Crown Beer is the logical result of years devoted to the attainment of perfection in brewing.

GOLDEN CROWN BEER is a nutritious beer because it contains all of the food portion of the grain—a result of our process.

GOLDEN CROWN BEER is an invigorating beer because it contains the tonic properties of the choicest hops.

GOLDEN CROWN BEER is a pure beer because it is made under cleanly and sanitary conditions.

GOLDEN CROWN BEER is the ideal home beverage because it contains a very small percentage of alcohol (3 1/2%). It is truly a temperate drink, invigorating and healthful. Order a case for the home today. Have it always in the home. ...

Cherub Devine

By
SEWELL FORD

Copyright, 1909, by Mitchell Kennerley

Here is a fascinating latter day romance, written in the vein and style that have won fame for Sewell Ford. "Cherub Devine" is an inspiration in his refreshing outlook on life and people, and after a meteoric Wall street career and a season of recreation among the effervescent ladies of the stage he meets the charming Countess Vecchi. This sweet young American girl, victim of the execrable "international marriage" system, resolves that it is her duty to reform the Cherub, and the outcome provides a narrative seldom equaled in its fanciful humor, illuminating character delineation and tender sentiment.

CHAPTER I.

THOSE who doubt that fate now and then indulges in irony should have observed the manner in which Hewington Acres came into the possession of "Cherub" Devine.

Bulkins, the real estate agent who made the sale, attributes the whole credit of the transaction to his own shrewdness. But, then, Bulkins is one of those persons who would cheerfully call upon the entire universe to prove that he (Bulkins) was favored above all other men in that respect. Does the sun shine? Bulkins knew it would and for his profit. There comes a storm. Bulkins appropriates it, wrings a percentage therefrom and whisks confidently at the solar system whose operations are conducted for his special and particular benefit.

"I can sell anything, anywhere," this was Bulkins' philosophy, his religion, his declaration of faith in himself.

And of course Bulkins knew the habits and ways of Cherub Devine. Every one knew them. Any one—the man in the street, the clerk behind the counter, the very newswoman at the curb—could tell you all about Cherub, give you his entire history, from the time he started his career as office boy for a Chicago stockbroker until he evolved into the many millioned speculator whose audacious methods were at that moment stirring things up in Wall street. Each and every one could have told you exactly the kind of man he was and misused the mark widely, for such men are not so easily estimated.

Perhaps it was this, visible in his wide set blue eyes, with the flash of light behind; perhaps it was only the pluck ebullience of his cleanly shaven face, which earned him the name of Cherub, a designation applied impartially by port messenger boys, traveling brokers and staid heads of great corporations. He had been christened otherwise, of course, and possibly Cherub was inappropriate when you consider all that he was or seemed to be, but the designation was universal, accepted, as you know.

Just where he might be expected to be found Bulkins had run across him, seated comfortably in a leather covered, wide rimmed office chair at an open window which looked out across Broad street toward the more or less ornate front of the New York Stock Exchange.

The time was a little past noon of an August Saturday. Therefore the stream of men was setting outward between the great pillars. The curb was lined with hansom and autos, and into these climbed brokers variously attired, variously burdened. Here came one in blue serge wearing a smoking cap, there two who swung golf bags in their hands. Others were followed by boys carrying life bags. "Hello, Cherub! They got after you today, eh? Planning how to get even, are you?"

Mr. Devine showed no resentment. "Maybe I was," said he. Bulkins snorted out a mirthless laugh.

"Good! He 'em, my boy! That's what I'd do. When they think they've got me beat worst I bob up and go at 'em hardest. But, say, you ought to take a rest once in awhile. Does a man good. You ought—He grinned broadly. "Oh, I say, Cherub," dropping his tone, "I've got just the thing you ought to have—a country place."

"Yes?" Mr. Devine acknowledged the joke by flicking half an inch of cigar ash on the window ledge.

"You bet!" Bulkins was smothering Cherub's coat sleeve. "It's Hewington Acres—up on the sound—right edged suburban property, and going dirt cheap on foreclosure. You know about the Hewingtons; swell family, but gone all to smash financially. Now, there's twenty acres of park along the water, nice little forty room cottage—"

"Only forty?"

"With stables, lodge house, garden, a shack and the like. It's fully furnished and goes as it stands, even to the servants if you want them. Just the place for a family man like you."

And Bulkins snorted a fresh appreciation of his own humor, winking regularly at an astonished broker's clerk who happened to be passing.

Mr. Devine seemed to have missed the joke.

"How much?" he asked, his gaze still fixed on the stone steps opposite.

"Receivers would take $300,000, but it's worth double. That's no sure as I'm standing here. I tell you, Cherub, that property—"

"I'll take it," said the Cherub.

"Is? Bulkins' pendulous under lip was sagging away from his yellow teeth.

"I said I'd take it at sixty. What do you want to bid the bargain—ten thousand? Fifteen? Well, call it fifteen." And before that under lip of Bulkins had stiffened he was holding Cherub's check in his hands.

Observed Bulkins afterward when he had mentally added his commission to his bank account and recovered from his surprise: "Now, some men would have been six months turning over a property like that, but me, I unload it on the first sucker I meet, though what in thunder Devine wants of a place like Hewington Acres is more 'n I can see!"

Apparently Cherub had no immediate use for it since he allowed three weeks to elapse without referring to the transaction, except to lose the deed over to a clerk and tell him to have it recorded. He seemed to forget all about it until one Friday afternoon when he found himself with a "closing" Saturday, a Sunday and an ensuing Monday holiday on his hands.

"Better come with me for a run into the Berkshires, Cherub, and help me try out my new machine," urged Williston, one of the "Chicago crowd," whose hobby was buying another and more expensive touring car every month or so.

"Thanks, but I guess I'm about due out at my place on the sound."

"What—a! You don't mean to say you've set up a country establishment?" And Williston gave him an incredulous look.

"Didn't have to—bought it all standing. Haven't seen it yet. It's out—well, say, blamed if I know just where it is. Boy, ring up Bulkins, real estate."

Having summoned Bulkins to the other end of the wire, Mr. Devine proceeded to ask enlightenment.

"That you, Bulkins? Well, this is Devine. Say, what's the name of that place you sold me? Is it Hewington Acres? Oh, Hewington! Good! And where is it? Yes, where? No. How should I know? Ah, that's it, is it? Guess I can remember. But how do you get there? Sure, Thirty-fourth street ferry. Thanks. So long."

And ten minutes later Mr. Devine had started on his voyage of discovery into the fashionable wilds of Long Island, bent on inspecting the first piece of real estate which he had ever owned, the first tangible fruits of his newly acquired millions.

Owing to the foresight of Bulkins, who had sent a warning telegram in advance, Mr. Devine was met at the station by one Timmins, who singled him out with unerring promptness, introducing himself as caretaker and general superintendent of Hewington Acres, and waved him obligingly toward a yellow wheeled trap drawn by a pair of glossy cobs.

"Whose team?" Mr. Devine was asking.

"Yours, sir."

"All right. Let 'er go."

No one will ever know just how much Cherub Devine enjoyed that ride or the sensation he experienced when they turned in through the big stone gateposts and Timmins remarked cheerfully, "Here we are, sir."

At the last curve of the driveway the trees seemed suddenly to open, and there sprang into view the low roofed, many windowed, much awninged "cottage," with its porte-cochere, servants' annex, glass roofed conservatory and deep verandas.

"Show you through the house first, sir?" suggested Timmins.

"Right as well."

Mr. Devine was lighting a black cigar. This accomplished, he followed Timmins into the darkened vista of hall and through the large rooms. As Bulkins had assured him, the place was fully furnished. There were chairs, tables, rugs, books, pictures, even freshly cut flowers in the vases.

Points for Merchants

Cultivate courage and aggressiveness in your newspaper advertising. Educate the people to look for your ads. Make your announcements interesting, plain, make them say something more than just "soap for sale" say what kind of soap, what it will do, whether it perfumed or not, whether it helps or hurts the skin, tell the "why" of all these qualities and then tell them it costs 10c a bar and is worth it. People buy things freely when they know they are getting their money's worth, and how will they know it unless you tell them? Don't tell one or two people a day it is too slow. Tell everybody every day through the Gazette columns. The Gazette, Daily and Semi-Weekly each week goes to five times the number of people reached by all other Jansville publications combined. It's the greatest single power for news and business in Rock county. Think this over—Think right, act right. It is what we think and what we do that makes us what we are. We are always glad to talk things over.

THEATRE

Evils in American Life.

In her recent novel "Marriage à la Mode" Mrs. Humphrey Ward suggests that the crying evil of our American life is divorce and the cause of this, as she sees it is the struggle of American women for expression of their own individuality. Probably the reason for this restlessness in American wealth, the use of which in the majority of cases is only a disorganizing influence.

This same thought is the basis of Lewis Worthington Smith's comedy success "The Art of Life" which Donald Robertson will present here Friday evening, March 18. Philip Langhlin and his wife have lived to middle age in comparative poverty. She has been his faithful helpmate and they have known a certain happiness. Wealth gives them the opportunity of realizing their own individualities. They suddenly discover that they have nothing in common but the past, the struggle for life. Now he seeks the beautiful things of life while she seeks social diversions. The situation in their home is rendered more fatal through the meddling of a dilapidated gentleman of leisure who delights in the naive emotions of Mrs. Langhlin. He points out to her a path of pleasure but it is a path which leads her from her home and husband through divorce. Only a sudden shock awakens the pair to their danger and the tragedy is averted. The comedy, rising at times to the heights of tragedy is vital in every scene and while delighting one with its powerful portrayal of life leaves impression which will be food for reflection.

The woman with a past has been a familiar subject dealt with by play writers for many years with more or less disagreeable effect. "St. Elmo" presents a man with a past and his redemption at the hands of one of the sweetest little heroines of the stage makes a production that loses none of the force of the unpleasant plays but leaves the spectator with a feeling that he is better for having witnessed the performance.

Following closely the lines of Augustin J. Evans' successful novel of the same name "St. Elmo" presents a little widow of a girl who hears almost the first unkind words in her life from the lips of St. Elmo the millionaire. A series of dramatic transmutations the innocent girl of the woods into the splendid household where St. Elmo's world is law.

She loves him and remains true to her love through countless temptations. St. Elmo fights his love for the girl. He tests her faith in every way, he plunges into more desperate affairs than ever but cannot escape the girl's steady influence for good. A more powerful sorcery of attraction than is presented by the play could not easily be imagined. It provides the right kind of a problem play.

This splendid attraction will be at the Myers Theatre next Thursday, March 17, matinee and evening.

ROOSEVELT VISITS AMERICAN MISSION

Addresses Students and is Greeted with Cheers—Attends Banquet at Sudan Club.

Khartoum, Mar. 17.—After paying a second visit to Omdurman, Col. Roosevelt, accompanied by Shatin Pasha, proceeded to the American mission and addressed the students, numbering more than 200, and several hundred old Syrian Protestant college boys. The former wore turquoise, red silk caps with tassels, while many of the latter wore picturesque attire.

The former president's arrival was greeted with cheers and handclapping, and Dr. Giffen, head of the institution, introduced the distinguished guest, whose speech at various points was loudly applauded.

At the conclusion of the meeting the students cheered Col. Roosevelt again and sang college songs. Then the party returned to the palace.

A banquet to Col. Roosevelt was served in the open grounds of the Sudan club, in Khartoum, and covers were laid for about a thousand.

Tonight were drunk to the king and the khedive, the band accompanying them with the national anthems. When the former president rose to speak he was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm. He eulogized the wonderful work of the British in civilizing the Sudan. He likened the work to that of the Panama canal, which is being accomplished despite all criticism.

Tumultuous applause greeted the speaker at the close, for Col. Roosevelt's declamatory manner of enunciation and the rapidity with which he spoke had held all listeners spellbound. The pipers of the King's Own then played several marches, winding in and out around the tables. This lively diversion was followed by a Highland sword dance, and a toast to the health of Col. Roosevelt was given in Gaelic.

DISCUSS STATE-WIDE STRIKE.

Rapid Transit Company at Philadelphia Run Many More Cars.

Philadelphia, Mar. 17.—A statement issued by the committee of ten in charge of the strike situation here consists of a proclamation modeled after the Declaration of Independence, in which the labor representatives proclaim their intention of maintaining their fight on behalf of the striking car men.

E. B. Greenwalt, president of the State Federation of Labor, returned to this city and, together with a number of organizers from various sections of the state, was in consultation with the local strike committee. Plans for the proposed state-wide strike were discussed.

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company reported 1,225 cars in operation, the highest number since the beginning of the strike.

The only disorder reported occurred when Eugene Platt, three years old, was run over and killed by a trolley car in front of his home. The motor man was roughly handled by a crowd that collected, but was rescued by the police.

The voluntary appearance of Mr. Patterson was taken by the Jersey City authorities to indicate the intention of the other Chicago beef millionaires who were indicted to surrender to the New Jersey courts.
